

SUNDAY SUN

BEAUTY LOOK TO OPT FOR ORGANIC

By ZOE BURN

▶ EVERYONE knows the benefits of eating organic, and now the beauty world is cottoning on to it.

More and more people are going organic to make sure they aren't pumping extra chemicals into the body, so we've found a selection of the most readily available organic products.

▶ THIS month, The Body Shop launched its Nutriganics range, an organic collection designed to target the early signs of ageing. It's a nice collection, which offers the usual Body Shop high standards and smells great, with easy application. Prices start at £8 for the Foaming Facial Wash 150ml, with seven different products.

▶ GOING organic doesn't have to be expensive.

Australian Organics Evening Primrose Moisturising Body Oil costs just £4.49. It's a specially formulated treatment that utilises natural plant ingredients and has a delicate green leafy fragrance with a hint of patchouli.

▶ ANOTHER fantastic collection is the Purity Organic Skincare range. This brand has been created to deliver sustainable and organic beauty without a huge price tag.

with all products priced from £4.99 to £8.99. Try the Facial Wash, £4.99 for a softening blend of sweet almond oil, aloe vera and glycerine or for a deep clean use the Facial Exfoliator £5.99.

▶ ORGANIC Surge is a line

▶ GOING organic doesn't have to be expensive.

Australian Organics Evening Primrose Moisturising Body Oil costs just £4.49. It's a specially formulated treatment that utilises natural plant ingredients and has a delicate green leafy fragrance with a hint of patchouli.

▶ ANOTHER fantastic collection is the

... meets them enough – a great alternative to oils and lotions.

HOT THIS WEEK: It may not be organic, but it certainly looks fresh enough to eat! DKNY's limited edition Be Delicious Pop Art has been whizzing off the shelves since its launch last month – and time is running out if you want to grab one before they go. Inspired by the pop art movement, DKNY has taken its original, apple-inspired Delicious fragrance and shaken it up with a bright and bold twist. The bottle is emblazoned with green Ben Day dots and peach balloons, giving a whole new look to an already popular fragrance.

£29.39 for 50ml and £41.11 for 100ml.

