It's just water in a can, right?.. Well yes, but it's awesome and I love it, lots :)

This was sent to me for review purposes by a PR company and I have been using it ever since I received it.

They Say :

The Brumisateur® is nature's solution for glamorous looking skin based on Evian natural spring water's balanced mineral composition and remarkable purity - the neutral pH of Evian® natural spring water invigorates all skin types. At home, in the office, on the plane, at the gym, or to perfect your make-up, make Evian facial spray part of your daily skincare routine, all year round.

My two main uses for this have been Morning and Evening as part of my skincare routine, I cleanse, pat my face dry, soak it with this, wait a few minutes for it to settle, pat off the excess and then apply my moisturiser. My moisturiser sinks in as normal and my skin feels supple and more refreshed.

The other way I like to use it is to set my make up. After full face application I hold the spray at arms length from my face, spritz and then go! My make up feels hydrated and does last longer! Amazing how a pressurised can of water can do such a thing, huh?

This is easy to use and comes in different sizes, mine is a cute travel size can which is nice to carry around in your purse.

I know that this would also be awesome for hot summer days when you are clammy and need a boost, Because it's just so cooling and refreshing.

You can buy this here, It is quite expensive for what it is, but I have really enjoyed using it. Some people have said you can put Evian water in a spray bottle and use it in the same way, but I like it in the can because it's cooler and is a nice subtle mist.
